10 Secrets The Animals Want You to Know

The animals are the holders of much wisdom, and often their attempts to communicate with us are labelled "bad behaviour". When we see animals in the light of who they truly are, humans can access the wisdom teacher in their living room who is helping them on the road to enlightenment, especially in this time of the 2012 Phenomenon.

Behaviour is Communication

You might have noticed the animals and the natural world behaving a little oddly lately. Perhaps there is an increased volatility at times, or more timidity. Perhaps your dog is snapping, your cat is urinating or your horse is pigrooting. It's not "bad" behaviour; it's an urgent communication, which means we really have to listen. So before you reach for the mobile to call the vet, trainer or behaviourist, let's take a further look at the animal companions in our lives, understand who they truly are and what secrets they need us to know so urgently now.

As we are being affected by what I call the 2012 Phenomenon, so too are our animals and of course, Mother Nature. With each download of light and intense planetary alignment, the sensitive and the frail of our furry friends are finding it challenging to cope. Many will cross over at the equinoxes, solstices, eclipses and other times of intense heavenly energy. Other animals herald a shift with odd or unruly behaviour. As we are under pressure to shift our consciousness, they are under a double pressure of dealing with the energies of the time, and also the increased stress of the humans they live with.

When animals alert you to an energetic shift with sudden crabbiness, tension or an increased need for activity, it's time for an immediate response. This is time to step away from the busyness of life and do ceremony at home, be extra mindful and spend more time listening to them and the language of nature.

Living with reverence for and honouring my animal companions enriches my life beyond the mundane and truly into a world of magical beauty. And this is what they want and need from us right now. They need to be remembered and respected for who they truly are so they can help us remember who we truly are.

When an animal exhibits what we call "bad behaviour", it can also mean there is something wrong or they are holding a mirror to how their person is behaving or handling the energetic shifts.

The 2012 Phenomenon

At these times there might be increased stress, increased fear and anger, or what has been dubbed the ascension symptoms – weight gain, heart palpitations, aches and pains in the body, stiffness in the joints, menopausal-like symptoms like forgetfulness, faintness, rushes of heat and flu-like symptoms without the flu.

This is the 2012 Phenomenon - a process of evolution humanity is going through right this very moment. We are currently in the pressure cooker of a birth canal, struggling with our increased personal challenges and either floating in the tide of faith, or drowning in fear.

We are being asked to change by the animal kingdom and we are being forced to change by the spiritual nature of the times we live in. Louis, a dog in spirit, put it in a nutshell. He explained the animals "have had enough of suffering and that hate and anger were not the key, love is."

Our companion animals are the ones who do suffer when their human friends and carers are out of kilter. If we understand that thoughts and words are things, and that arguments can leave energetic imprints that everyone is affected by, then we can well understand what Louis is talking about. We talk a lot about love, but humanity as a species seems to enjoy a superficial love. It's conditional, not unconditional.

"Humans often really don't know what it is to love unconditionally," says Louis. "In this they are our children, and need to be guided. This is why we often come in a cute and cuddly form – to show them the way."

Indigenous prophecy around the world talks of a golden era of peace. However we can't have that peace, while we still remain estranged from the natural world. So the animals, as the "voice" of the nature, are urging us to wake up to our natural telepathy and stop viewing them as pets to be owned, but rather as soul companions on the journey to the new earth.

The Ten Secrets

Here are the ten secrets that the animals urgently want you to know:

1. They are spiritual and psychic beings.
2. They are teachers and healers.
3. They reincarnate across species.
4. They are the first tribes and the holders of much wisdom.
5. They have a voice and a language you can understand.
6. They have free will.
7. They have intelligence and a connection to the Divine.
8. They are angels without wings.
9. They are helping you become enlightened.
10. They are helping you become Human Angels.

We all know that as a species humanity is capable of an enormous amount of love and compassion. We love our animal companions, and yet, often, when dealing with the needs of a species people really don't understand, these same beloveds are sent off to the pound, given away or sold.

When we walk the path of scientific materialism we upset not only our animal companions, but also our Great Mother. We're seeing the result of this now all around our planet. We are still a long way from the human species we are meant to be.

The humans of the Golden Age of indigenous prophecy are peaceful people, fully realised, with access to all psychic abilities. They don't kill, they don't yell or shout or hit or blame. They love unconditionally, create beauty wherever they are and understand and live that Divine connection with animals and nature. This is a life of harmony and beauty, which we can barely conceive of. And yet, December 21, 2012, the due date for our birth as this new species, is rocketing toward us.

Little wonder the animals are pushing the envelope. We need to be shedding the stories of the past, and embodying the new human today with all our thoughts and actions. We need to remember to forgive, let go, and live our lives in gratitude and praise.

Animals as Master Teachers

Many animals are Master Teachers. These animals are usually the ones we have the most trouble with – because humans still seem to learn the most when faced with a crisis.

My horse Sollie was a Master Teacher for me. We began with a Divine partnership where he would show me images about where he wanted to go on our rides together, and let me know when he wanted to increase his pace. We rode as one being.

And then we didn't.

Suddenly he was "dangerous". I was told to "move him on". Instead, out of my love for him, I learnt new tools of natural horse handling, began a whole new journey in my life and career, and grew until I became a person of strong spirit, someone he could finally respect.

He knew I would need this strong spirit in my life and in my future. And he was right. Little did I know it at the time, but I was being pushed on my spiritual path, and being shaped from a "worrywart" to a woman who stands gently in her power. I needed to be able to command this same respect from other humans, even though at the time, I had no idea where my path would lead me. Sollie and I resumed our comfortable partnership and mutual trust and respect, because not only had I become strong inside, but I also made him feel both loved and safe. When we are calm and still, so can they be.

I had been told to get another horse by many so-called horse people. Sollie was considered "too hard". If I had done that I would have missed the most precious gift I could have ever received – a gift of love from a Master Teacher and a soul companion across time. When he died, Sollie told me he was now holding me back. I didn't understand that at the time, but looking back I can see he was right as usual. I needed new challenges and a freedom to travel, study and grow my medicine, which I never would have done had he been alive.

There is much talk about "pack leader" or "herd leader" and most of it is human nonsense. We think we own animals and they have to do as they are told. How can one own a soul? In the Quechuan language of Peru, there is no verb "to have". They would say: "this beautiful gift of a dog is with me."

Ask: What is the Communication?

This is the relationship the animals need us to have with them now. We need to be able to look at their so-called unruly behaviour and ask what the deeper message is. When they dig holes in the garden, chew the furniture or become escape artists, there is usually a lot more going on than meets the human eye.

Perhaps the house is full of entities. Perhaps the negative energies in the house are such that it hurts them physically to be there. Perhaps they need a walk to connect to the Great Mother and they know you do too.

Cats will often urinate inappropriately when there are rats, other visitors, or spirits in the house. Or perhaps they have a urinary problem and are trying to make you understand they need help. Or they could just be picking up your stress, and being completely affected by it.

Horses are highly sensitive and see us as light. They read your energy at a great distance and know your moods. If your mood is dark, don't bother trying to be with them. If they kick, buck or pigroot, maybe they are in pain. So many horses have back problems because of the human way of riding them.

Dogs are deeply affected by emotional states, by the energies left in the house, by your own state of health.

We are all souls on a spiritual journey. It's time now to view your animal companion with new eyes. What wisdom do they hold for you? What steps do they want you to take on your journey to becoming a fully realised human being in the New Earth of peace?

One of the most important messages coming through now is to have fun. The animals want people to go outside and dance barefoot in nature. This is to not only communicate with the Great Mother, but to receive her healing energies. It raises your vibration, helps you shift frequency and assists you to move into becoming the human angel the animals and Great Spirit truly want you to be. So next time you take your beautiful gift of a dog for a walk, take off your shoes, and dance!

About Billie Dean

Billie Dean is a professional writer and filmmaker working as a voice for animals, nature and the fae.

An innate interspecies telepath, Billie is the author of Secret Animal Business, and as an animal shaman has communicated with and helped thousands of animals all over the world for over 30 years.

Billie teaches the New Shamanism, a blend of ancient wisdom and channelled new thought, mostly from the animals themselves, the trees, and the fae. She writes on the mystical life she lives with the Otherworld and the rescued animals she and her family provide a forever home for on their NSW country property.

A natural therapist and animal advocate, Billie promotes compassionate action and living, and she also blogs about this and the Heart-Centred Way, a enlightened, harmonious path with animals, based on her new book Heart-Centred Kinship.

Billie is an activist and a strong supporter of animal rights. She is the founder of Rainbow Fianna: Wisdom School for Earthkeepers, a school for teaching people to be the best animal guardians, partners, and healers they can be.

Billie is also a writer/director for the film company Wild Pure Heart Productions (www.wildpureheart.com), which she runs with her husband comic, author and filmmaker Andrew Einspruch and their daughter Tamsin.
